FATHER DARKLEAF SAYS....

By chr....

From Washington to General MacArthur and the heroes in the Philippines, on the General's birthday: "We can't send you anything but love, baby!"

At the banquet of the Virginia Press Association Friday night, Congressman Mike Monroney of Oklahoma, brought down the house with the following yarn. The Congressman said that when he got to Richmond for the banquet, he heard two colored boys talking in the railroad station. The conversation went as follows:

Boy No. 1—"Did you hear what Hitler gonna do to us"

Boy No. 2— "Naw, what Hitler gonna do?"

Boy No. 1— "He gonna send a big fleet of airplanes over here and he gonna drop bombs on Boston. Then he gonna fly down and drop a lot of bombs on New York. Then he gonna keep on coming and he gonna drop a lot more bombs on Washington. Then his airplanes gonna fly down and drop bombs all over Virginia—"

At that point Boy No. 2 broke in: "Go on, nigger, you know that can't happen. Why Senator Byrd wouldn't let Hitler do nothing to Virginia."

Local stores are having a time trying to meet demands for sugar. Rationing is just around the corner. However, a pound a week per person should take care of everyone's NEEDS. The rationing will be done by means of issuing ration coupons or booklets . . . a better system than the system used in the last war.

We think the Amerikan people are being misled by the present Russian advances against the German East Armies. So soon as it became apparrant that the German objective of crushing Russian resistance (not to capture Moscow, mind you) was not to be gained last fall, it was to be expected that the German command would do two things: first, give the better equipped troops a rest in the warmth of home, replacing them with inferiour Balkan troops, and, second, that in order to shorten communications over the winter, the Germans might withdraw virtually to the old Polish frontier. Now, we agree that the Russians have amazed the world by their superb fighting machine. But don't for a moment think that the mightiest German effort of all won't be coming up this spring!

REGISTRATION FEB. 16

All males 20 through 44 must register on February 16.

Ban on sale of new automobiles is extended to February 2.

KEEP SERIAL NUMBERS

Car owners are urged to write down and keep the serial numbers of their tires, as a means of identification in event of theft.

Legislation introduced to increase commission to nine members.

Tire Quota is Reduced For February

The Commodity Distribution Committee of Appomattox county has received the February quota for the county for automobile and truck tires and tubes, and finds that the quota is less than that for January in every item except truck tubes.

The passenger (and up to 1-2 ton pick-up truck) tire quota is reduced from 6 in January to 5 in February, and the quota for truck tires is reduced to 11, from 15 in January. Permits for 57 truck tubes may be issued in February, however compared with a January quota of 15.

With only two more days in January, the committee has already issued permits for the full January quota of passenger tires, and almost all the quota of truck tires.

There has been quite a rush to secure permits to purchase obsolete tires. These do not come out of the quota, but cannot be purchased without permits. The retailers report that stocks of obsolete tires are almost exhausted.

Application forms are available at the office of the committee, on the second floor of the county office building. After the application has been filled out . . . in full . . . the applicant must have an inspection made of the tires and-or tubes to be replaced. Inspectors are James H. Lucado, and Luke D. Godsey, at Appomattox, and Z. T. Moran at Pamplin. The committee cannot act on an application until one of these inspectors has examined the tires or tubes to be replaced.

The committee calls attention to the fact that permits must be used within thirty days of date issued.

Battle Says Tire Bar Won't Solve Safety Problem in Virginia

The Government ban on the sale of tires and automobiles will not necessarily solve Virginia's traffic accident problem, Colonel M. S. Battle, director of the Division of Motor Vehicles, said today.

There is a possibility the curtailment will reduce the number of accidents, but this is contingent upon three things, he said. They are if the ban reduces sharply the number of cars now in use; if motorists are influenced to conserve their cars and tires by driving less, and if those who do continue to operate their vehicles drive at a greatly reduced rate of speed.

"Our motor vehicle registration is the greatest in the history of the State," the director said. "It will take a long time, I think, to realize any reduction in the amount of travel on the highways due to the various bans now in effect by the Federal Government. Tire and vehicle rationing have come into being and there will be some added vehicles if the persons are able to get the priorities."

The bans, however, may create such safety problems as many motorists using tires beyond the safety point, Colonel Battle said. Also some previously discarded vehicles may be patched up and put into service.

"The tempo and urgency of war production and transportation," Colonel Battle remarked, "will be increasing every day and thereby further aggrevating the problems that already have sent Virginia's traffic toll to record proportions."

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Johnston, of Lynchburg were guests of the former's brother, J. D. Johnston and Mrs. Johnston and family Sunday.

A. M. Goodman, who has been sick, is able to be out again.

GUARD THE PRECIOUS METALS IN YOUR HOME

Mrs. Ella S. Anderson, home demonstration agent, says "Ever since pioneer days, American women have had a reputatin for being adaptable and resourceful. Now is the time to cultivate these qualities in full measure. One way to help yourself —and your country in its war effort—is to look after the precious metals in your home. Aluminum, copper, steel, tin and others you have always thought of as 'common and every day' now belong on the 'precious' list. Guard the metal you have by giving them care that will make them last.

"Handle gently is a good rule for all metal pieces. Some metals will stand a considerable amount of rough handling, but none improves by it. Hang each kettle and pot on its own peg in the kitchen, or give each one its separate place on a shelf. Egg beaters and all small kitchen tools, and especially steel knives, need a place of their own. Iron utensils need a dry place. Kettles left forgotten on the stove until the food is burned and the bottom ruined; pans dented and leaky from knocking about in a drawer with a lot of heavy utensils or from rough dishwashing; frying pans warped out of shape, because cold water was poured in them when they were hot, are examples of careless waste and should be corrected.

"Now, about special needed by different metals.

"Aluminum: Alkali darkens and pits it. Avoid strong soap or scouring powder or soda. Acid, like tomatoes, tart apples or buttermilk, brightens aluminum. But don't leave acid food standing in aluminum. The acid may act on the metal and make little pits in it. Aluminum may be cleaned with fine steel wool or with paste or powder and vinegar. Never scrape burned food frim aluminum with a sharp utensil; use a wooden spoon.

Tin: Never try to shine tin pans. If you scour tin, you are likely to take the tin covering off the metal underneath and leave it open to rust. Darkened tin absorbs heat better than shiny tin, which reflects heat; consequently, darkened tin is better for baking. To remove burned food from tin, fill the pan with water containing soda and heat for a few minutes. Keep tin utensils in a dry place.

Chromium: Many modern plumbing fixtures, metal furniture, serving dishes and electrical appliances are plated with chromium, a soft metal that should be washed in soapy water, rinsed, and rubbed dry with soft cloth. Never use metal polish or cleaning powder in chromium.

Iron: Rust is the big problem with all iron and steel, except stainless steel. Dry iron utensils thoroughly and keep in a dry place. Remove rust by scouring with steel wool, a copper scouring ball or cleaning powder. Use kerosene oil to protect your oil stove when not in use.

Aside from metals, there are other small everyday articles which you have always taken for granted around the kitchen but which have already come under the pinch of war.

Your Clothes line may not be the same during the coming year as last year. If you have a good piece of rope, dry it out carefully, and keep it clean and free from mud and oil. Keep it hanging in a dry, clean place. The hemp that used to go into the making of clothes lines now must do its bit to win the war. Another material that goes into the making of the best rope is abaca. We produce no abaca in the United States. It comes from the Philippine Islands.

The BROOM you use in sweeping the kitchen, the one with red fibers that remain stiff whether they are wet or dry, is a broom to cherish and treat with care. The red fiber in the broom is palmyra from India.

Gunny sacking or burlap is now becoming a rare, precious and valuable material that deserves care. Burlap is made from jute, which is produced in India, and there is no real substitute for jute at the low price we have been paying.

The war may reach every home, but these changes and inconveniences are a small price to pay for VICTORY!

At the same time, the Governor said that he will demand arrest of all speeders, regardless of their rank or position, universal arrests of drunken drivers, and the eliminations of state policemen as escorts for such ceremonies as processions, funerals, etc.
